At the conference sessions on Mon-day the general theme was the re-lationship of public and private relief officials. During the morning there was a round table meeting under the chairmanship of Eugene Kerner, sec-ptory, of the Associated Charities retary of the Associated Charitles, Waterbury. The speakers included Frederick Shall of New York, who spoke on publicity and finance in pubic and private charities; Mrs. L. B. Lews, general secretary of the United Workers, Greenwich, who discussed Medical Social Service, and the Rev. J. McLaren Richardson, commission-er of public charities, Bridgeport, whose topic was "Co-operation."

At the general session, which followed the round table meeting, the speakers with their subjects included: John A, Kingsbury, commissioner of charities of New York, How Public and Private Relief Officials Can Cooperate in the Rebuilding of Family Life; Mrs. Ada E. Sheffield, of the Massachusetts state board of chari-Massachusetts state board of chari-ties, Public Aid to Mothers in Massa-chusetts and Its Effect on Family Life; and Frederick R. Johnson, gen-eral secretary of the Associated Char-ities of Boston, The Value of Volun-

At all of the meetings a general discussion followed the set addresses. There was a lively discussion of the question of financing charities, durng which Commissioner Richardson of Bridgeport told of the difficulties encountered in the work there.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop bitterly criticised what she termed the "loose methods" of compiling vital statistics in this country. In Connecticut, she said, 12 1-2 per cent, of the births are not registered. She also declared that child labor is increasing in this state, despite the compulsory education law. Continuing, she said that the high rate of infant mortality was a blot on the civilized world and that the only way to better child life and adult life was by making a more careful study of conditions, to determine the fac-tors which make up the conditions.

World.

This is without doubt an interesting age in which we are living. The world is always in a state of plux. The transition through which we are now passing is especially noticeable. We are no longer satisfied with steps; we must take leaps. We are doing everything on a large scale. This is true in the realm of science and religion. The W. Ames and mother.

about on the sea of doubt, speculation and aquasticism.

We are glad for sciene, but it can never analyze God, or even find Him for us. God is a spirit and they who worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. Science has a place but it can't take the place of religion. The business of religion is to bring us in touch with the eternal.

A theologian once came to Jesus and was glad to acknowledge him as a great teacher, but Christ said he had to be made over again. The man wanted to discuss that second birth, just as men are now discussing the virgin birth. Science can't analyze the second birth nor the virgin birth. Nico-demus had not fused. The crucifixion did the work. This is the business of religion, to give a man a new heart. Science is good in its place but it can't produce the second birth.

The baseball team has started the season with two victories. The first was gained over the Westerly H. S. school team and was a rather loosely played game on both sides, the Wheeler school team winning by a score of 11 to 9. The second game was played with Hopkinton H. S., and was full of interest. Ten innings were necessary to decide the contest, which resulted in a 12 to 11 victory for the home team. The organized cheering of the Wheeler school spectators was an encouraging feature of the game.
